

Women in Tax

8 May 2024

Hyatt Regency Perth

1 CPD hour

The future of work and the evolving professional landscape

Organisations are currently navigating the delicate balance between their employees' needs and commercial objectives. Decisions about remote work, office presence, talent retention and future-proofing are at the forefront, alongside the complexities of inter-generational dynamics.

Tax professionals find themselves under increased scrutiny as they strive to meet the evolving and demanding requirements set by regulators. Additionally, the looming challenges posed by artificial intelligence add an extra layer of complexity. Professionals in this field are grappling with the convergence of personal, professional, and business pressures, contemplating the path forward amidst these multifaceted challenges.

Our expert panel will dissect these pressing issues, drawing from their experiences to provide valuable insights and guidance on effectively managing the intricacies of the modern professional landscape.

Panel Members:

Paul Joseph, Partner & Chief Digital Officer, RSM Australia

Marnie Taylor, FTI, Partner, EY

Prof. Julia Richardson, Head of the School of Management and Marketing, Curtin University

Facilitator: Billy-Jo Famlonga, FTI, Founder and Principal, Famlonga Business Services

This unique event provides an opportunity for tax professionals at all stages of their career to network and hear inspiring stories shared by our expert panellists working in our profession. The event will feature an interactive session, followed by ample time to network over a delicious two-course lunch.
